

It's Time

by Ally Frame Nellmapius

Did you look around the world today?
Did you see that little child who didn't know a fathers love..
Did you count the cost of giving when they said that they were hungry..
Was your time too precious to stand and listen a while...
Have you noticed all those people on the sidewalk..waiting Have you looked into their eyes and have your seen their sorrow...
What motivates you
What makes you get up every morning Does the money really matter Has comfort overcome you...
Can you see beyond the borders of your tiny little world And did you ever notice the way the homeless struggle to feel the love of anyone and even in that bottle it takes away the madness takes away the sadness!
And yet you've stopped and wondered.. which car should I buy today and which long dress will suit me.. and have you felt that cold that reaches to your bones and what is it that motivates each waking hour on this planet...
You know His name..you know His story You'd love to be so like him but have you given up all your incessant rantings of all the things you want...
And can these words transform you into something supernatural a being full of light aglow in the darkness..
Can you spend some time in mourning for the millions who died not knowing.. that there's love in every person...
And can you brave that darkness even for a minute so that souls might know His glory and did you feed the hungry or cry with a sinner? so that he might find forgiveness...
These words are meant to heal you they're meant to bring you freedom on a planet that is longing for love and understanding and forgiveness that's quite awesome and wings to fly and eyes to see and ears to hear and arms to hold